Industrial School Authorities Will Prosecute Men Who Aid Delinquency.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.) Ogden, Nov. 8 .- For selling liquors, tobacco and drugs to boys out on parole from the State Industrial school three saloon keepers of Ogden are to be prose-cuted by the board of trustees of the In-custrial school, and half a dozen others have been warned against allowing the boys any of the forbidden things.
Prosecution was decided upon at meeting of the board of trustees at the school this afternoon. Harry Joseph, member of the board, re-Harry Joseph, member of the board, reported several aggravated cases of contributing to juvenile delinquency. John Pappos, a Greek proprietor of a cigar stand, is charged with selling fifteen sacks of cigarette tobacco and a large quantity of cocaine to one paroled boy, who, in turn, smuggled it into the school, where it was distributed errors the board. where it was distributed among the boys.

The board of trustees also decided to go ahead at once with the building of a girls' cottage at the school. Bids will be opened within the week. A general inspection of the school buildings was made, after which the board sat in business cases in granting several paralles and ness session, granting several paroles and

DINING CAR CONDUCTOR SHOT BY TWO ROBBERS

Eight White Men in Coach and $400 Saved After Sharp Fight With the Thugs.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.) Ogden, Nov. 8 .- One of the boldest holdups in Ogden in a number of months was that which occurred in the Denver & Rio Grande yards at 3:45 o'clock, when a dining car, containing eight men, was entered by two masked men and, in a fight that followed, Conductor C. G. Eldredge was shot through the left hand. Immediately after the shooting the robbers left without booty. The injured man was sent to the Ogden general hospital. The officers received a fair clue and it is thought the robbers will be run down. The Denver & Rio Grande dining car arrived on yesterday afternoon's train and was taken to the yards north of the corner of Twenty-first street and Reeves the night switch engine had attended to all the necessary switching and had left the yards, the robbers gained entrance to the car. That the robbers knew that Eldredge was the conductor and the one who had the money was disclosed by the fact that they passed the other seven men to reach Eldredge. One of the robbers shook him sternly, covered him wits a revolver and commanded him to throw up his hands and turn over his money. Eldredge was dazed from the sudden awakening and started to fight. His men also redge was dazed from the sudden awak-ening and started to fight. His men also jumped out of their beds to go to his assistance. During the struggle to retain the money Eldredge was shot through the left hand. The robbers then retreated through the door and vanished in the darkness. Eldredge had about $400 in his possession, which he saved.

and from that level a drift is being run to the northeast, where the ore body is expected to be encountered within the expected to be encountered within the next 30 days. The indications are that the Grutli and Provo, which lay close together, will strike the same body of ore, and that it is very similar to the Sioux ore.

Mr. Bestlemeyer, president of the company, says that of all the properties he has been interested in in Tintic, the Grutli is his favorite. A. N. Holdaway is of the opinion that the property will develop into one of the paying mines of the district within a short time.

WINS BY ONE VOTE ON OFFICIAL COUNT

(Special to The Herald-Republican.)
Park City, Nov. 8.—The official count of the ballots, completed today, ousts
Michael McGill for long-term councilman the home of Peter Gottfredson. Owing to the non-arrival of one of her sons the interment will be postponed until tomorrow.

A. J. Poulsen has just returned from the Madeline valley, California. He reports unusually large crops in that section. The Richfield colony will harvest between 1,500 and 2,000 bushels more grain than they calculated on.

J. M. Lauritzen and W. S. Rust, accompanied by an engineer, will leave here tomorrow for the Dixie country, where a great reclamation project will be commenced. A tract of land lying near St.

Michael McGill for long-term councilman and puts in John Thompson, by one vote. On the face of the returns McGill was reported elected. He is a Democrat. In the official count it was found that McGill was credited in the Sixth precinct of the Third ward with 113 votes, which should have been 103. Inasmuch as McGill's supposed plurality was only nine votes, this gave Thompson one plurality.

W. J. Buck, Republican councilman, recently went to Washington state and Ferd Getsch has been serving in his place. Democrats will ask the courts to put F. M. Smith, Democrat, in Getsch's place.

A Dramatic Incident, Lost to the Audience

When a play is so thoroughly advertised as the "Soul Kiss" has been and curiosity thoroughly aroused it is safe to predict a large audience at the opening performance. The audience at the to predict a large audience at the openaing performance. The audience at the theatre last night was satisfactory, but the play was not. To voice the opinion of the cultivated people who fall to find enjoyment in a production of the character of the "Soul Kiss," it is a calamity.
It was particularly noticeable that not only was there scant applause from the floor of the house, but that the upper galleries refused to respond.

"The Soul Kiss" is a hodge-podge of "The Soul Kiss" is a hodge-podge of vaudeville acts that goes by the name of musical comedy. There was music and

A Typical New York

The Salt Lake Workingman's Headquarters.

A highly dramatic incident occurred during the vaudeville performance at the Bungalow theatre last night, but one which the large audience did not see. Lew Williams of Smith, Evans and Williams, who is appearing in his own playlet, "All's Fair in Loe," was on the stage at the time. An elderly woman who had been quietly witnessing the performance, arose and left the theatr stage door and tried to force her way in. She excitedly cried, "He is my son. The elderly woman insisted upon going out on the stage greeting Mr. Williams, who she declared was her son, whom she had not seen for many years. It seemed for a time that she would go upon the stage and interrupt the act, but she was finally induced to remain quiet so that the audience would know nothing about it. She waited until the act was over, and the actor received her in his dressing room. He finally succeeded in convincing her that he was not her son. She was finally persuaded to leave. which she did tearfully, exclaiming her own son would not recognize her. She declined to give her name, but said she was a resident of Denver, Colo. When seen by a Herald-Republican reporter, Mr. Williams said his mother had been dead fourteen years, and while he would not be averse to having a mother, still he did not feel duty bound to adopt one at this late period.

ome of it was good, so good indeed that some of it was good, so good indeed that the chorus singing was the redeeming feature of the production, but there was little true comedy and none of the comic spirit that sweetens otherwise questionable performances. There is small pretense of plot; it is something about a compact with the devil made by a worthless artist and his model. Mephisto, played by Ben Grinnell, was the best acted role of the play and in one scene of real beauty, a view of New York at night, he almost rose to dramatic intensity. The effect of this scene was lost in the unmeaning nonsense of those that in the unmeaning nonsense of those that followed. It is, however, only just to credit the production with some very beautiful scenic effects. There were five changes in each act which called for the elaboration of scenery for which the play is noted.

"The Soul Kiss" is said to figure as a vehicle to exploit the dancing of Mile. Pertina, premier danseuse, late of Paris. She was not applauded. Certainly her toe dancing is remarkable and the descriptive dancing which has been so widely heralded is a wonderful performance, though no one could pretend to know what it was all about. But it was not beautiful and few are they who see in dancing was all about. But it was not beautiful and few are they who see in dancing anything more than a graceful and artistic series of movements. Sometimes art is so refined or so perverted that it loses the one claim it has upon the popular taste. So it is with the dancing of Mile. Pertina, which did not please last night; a guidence.

There are twenty musical numbers. Of these the duet, "My Affinity," by Miss Du Barry and Mr. Fox, and "My Diabolo Beau," by Miss Du Barry and the poodle choruses, were best liked in the first act. In the second act "I'm Glad to Get Back In the second act "I'm Glad to Get Back to New York," by the chorus, and "Those College Yells," by Mr. Hull and male chorus, were the most acceptable. The costumes were varied and many of them really handsome. As a spectacular performance the show is in places good and is elaborately good. "The Soul Kiss" will be seen at the Salt Lake cheatre during the entire week, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Saturday matinees.
